

Leigh Anne Minchew, DNP, RN, WHNP-BC

Dr. Minchew is a certified women's health nurse practitioner and has extensive practice experience in women's health across the lifespan. She completed her Doctor of Nursing Practice degree from Case Western Reserve University, a Master of Science degree in Nursing from Troy University, and a post-master's certification as an Advanced Women's Health Nurse Practitioner from the University of South Alabama. Dr. Minchew is an experienced acute care labor and delivery nurse and has experience in providing obstetrical care throughout pregnancy and the postpartum. Dr. Minchew has provided gynecological care to patients from adolescence through geriatrics and has conducted research for determining rural elderly women's knowledge of and participation in gynecological cancer screening. Further, Dr. Minchew is an experienced Sexual Assault Nurse Examiner (SANE).

Dr. Minchew has served as a clinical nurse preceptor in the acute care and advanced practice clinical setting. She is also an experienced faculty member with over fifteen years of excellence in academic classroom, clinical, and web-based teaching. She has taught at all academic levels and is currently teaching MSN and DNP courses while advising the design and development of students' doctoral projects.

Dr. Minchew has served on the Office of Women's Health Steering Committee since 2010 and actively promotes the health and well-being of all women.