Satellite Conference and Live Webcast
Tuesday, June 13, 2017
12:00 – 1:00 p.m. Central Time

Faculty:

Janet Bronstein, MA, PhD
Professor
University of Alabama at Birmingham
School of Public Health

Objectives:

1. To understand the relative roles of medical care and population risks in the occurrence of preterm birth
2. To identify the population-level risks for preterm birth
3. To identify which population-level risks for preterm birth are more common in the U.S. than in other countries
4. To consider how the U.S./international comparison of preterm births applies to Alabama's preterm birth rate.
5. To identify the most effective potential public health interventions for lowering Alabama's preterm birth rate.
