

MOTIVATIONAL INTERVIEWING IN THE CLINICAL SETTING

Satellite Conference and Live Webcast

Wednesday, August 21, 2013, 8:00-9:00 a.m. (Central Time)

9:00-10:00 a.m. (Eastern) 7:00-8:00 a.m. (Mountain) 6:00-7:00 a.m. (Pacific)

Motivational interviewing, MI, is a well-known scientific intervention strategy often used in treating patients who may have developed a health condition because of various lifestyle choices, for instance, diabetes as a result of being overweight. The method has proven to be rather effective in getting patients to consider making lifestyle changes to improve their health. This particular training is designed for nurses working in the clinical setting. Program faculty will provide an overview of the major components of MI, as well as give instruction on how to increase skills in counseling patients and their families.

FACULTY:

Bonnie A. Spear, PhD, RD

Professor of Pediatrics

University of Alabama at Birmingham

PROGRAM OBJECTIVES:

1. Describe and utilize behavioral counseling with open-ended questions and motivational reflection.
2. Assess patients for their readiness to change.
3. Demonstrate how to elicit "change talk" in patients and families with an emphasis on obesity.
