

Caring for Pediatric Patients

Satellite Conference and Live Webcast

Wednesday, May 11, 2011, 2:00-4:00 p.m. (Central Time)

Not all patients require the same care, especially when it comes to infants and children. Do not assume that just because you can successfully care for a home bound adult, that you can successfully care for a younger patient as well. Children and infants are not only smaller than adults, but also, they're significantly different physiologically.

Understanding each patient's unique characteristics will assist in recognizing the different responses children have to illness and injury.

PROGRAM OBJECTIVES:

1. Identify three developmental milestones for infants, toddlers, school-age children, and adolescents.
2. List common diseases and disabilities of infants, toddlers, school-age children, and adolescents.
3. Describe what to report to the supervisor when caring for the pediatric client/patient.
4. List three signs of abuse common in pediatric clients/patients.
5. Describe the importance of immunizations and the immunization schedule for pediatric clients/patients.
