Speaker Biography

David Kimberlin, MD, FAAP

David Kimberlin, MD, FAAP holds the Sergio Stagno Endowed Chair in Pediatric Infectious Diseases and Associate Vice President for Clinical Trials at the University of Alabama at Birmingham. He also is Vice Chair for Clinical and Translational Research in the UAB Department of Pediatrics.

Dr. Kimberlin is Editor of the 2027 American Academy of Pediatrics (AAP) Report of the Committee on Infectious Diseases (Red Book). He also was Editor of the 2024, 2021, 2018, and 2015 editions. In addition, he is Editor-in-Chief of Long's Principles and Practice of Pediatric Infectious Diseases, which is the leading textbook in the field. Since 2025, Dr. Kimberlin has served on the National Sustainability Committee that is charged with determining if the United States is maintaining its measles elimination status. From 2007 through 2024, Dr. Kimberlin served as the AAP Red Book liaison to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) Advisory Committee on Immunization Practices (ACIP). He is the Principal Investigator for the Collaborative Antiviral Study Group (CASG), now known as the Congenital and Perinatal Infections Consortium (CPIC). Funded continuously by NIH/NIAID/DMID since the early 1970s, the CASG/CPIC is an international network of pediatric academic medical centers that evaluates antiviral therapeutics in rare diseases with a large unmet medical need, including neonatal herpes simplex virus (HSV) infections, congenital cytomegalovirus (CMV) disease, congenital Zika syndrome, neonatal and infantile influenza infection, and neonatal enteroviral sepsis syndrome. It is comprised of approximately 40 study sites across the United States.

Dr. Kimberlin is a Past-President of the Pediatric Infectious Diseases Society, and in 2022 received the Walter T. Hughes Pediatric Infectious Diseases Society Distinguished Physician Award. In 2016 he received the Ronald McDonald House Charities 2016 Medical Award of Excellence. He has received numerous education awards.
