

The Management of Epidemic Disease

Satellite Conference and Live Webcast

Thursday, February 18, 2010 • 12:00-1:30 p.m. (Central Time)

1:00-2:30 p.m. (Eastern) • 11:00 a.m.-12:30 p.m. (Mountain) • 10:00-11:30 a.m. (Pacific)

Population growth, societal aging, urbanization, rapid transportation, economic interdependence, and emerging infectious disease have expanded community vulnerability far beyond what could have been imagined a few generations ago. But, an expansion of medical technology has provided an array of tools and techniques for therapeutics and public health disease management never before imagined. Program faculty will examine disease as a social event in an evolving global community and discuss why applying new systems and science is critical for tomorrow's public health professional.

FACULTY

Joseph Contiguglia, MD, MPH & TM, MBA

Clinical Professor of Public Health

Tulane University School of Public Health & Tropical Medicine

New Orleans, Louisiana

PROGRAM OBJECTIVES

1. Describe community vulnerabilities and how they affect community planning for epidemic disease.
2. Discuss how technology and science can be applied in the face of an epidemic.
3. Develop and apply operational models for the management of epidemic disease.
4. Match and align identified vulnerabilities with tools of process and science to maximize community survival and recovery in an epidemic.
