Satellite Conference and Live Webcast

Wednesday, May 30, 2012 12:00-1:30 p.m. (Central Time)

The future is viewed as a gathering storm where changes in perils and population vulnerabilities could lead to serious consequences. The creation of an operational model utilizing the Delta Analysis process will help address challenges faced by elderly patients during times of disaster. Program faculty will demonstrate a need to break from the way in which communities have prepared and reacted in the past in order to achieve survival and success in the future.

PROGRAM OBJECTIVES

1. Analyze demographics and vulnerabilities impacting actual capabilities to support geriatric patients during disasters.
2. Employ the tools of doctrine, analysis, and planning to sustain and augment effective community capability for crisis mitigation.
3. Identify evolutions in perils and vulnerabilities which threaten to impact future consequence management for elderly patients.
