

PROSTATE CANCER: RAISING AWARENESS AND EARLY DETECTION

Satellite Conference and Live Webcast

Tuesday, September 7, 2010 2:00 – 4:00 p.m. (Central time)

3:00-5:00 p.m. (Eastern) • 1:00-3:00 p.m. (Mountain) • 12:00-2:00 p.m. (Pacific)

Prostate cancer is one of the most common forms of cancer diagnosed in men. In fact, in 2009, nearly 200,000 new cases were identified in the United States. Prostate cancer can be treated effectively, but only if it's caught early. The key in winning the battle starts with health care providers recognizing the symptoms, performing the tests, and understanding the results to prescribe proper treatment. Program faculty will discuss these important issues, as well as address new screening guidelines issued by the American Urological Association. A prostate cancer survivor will also share his experiences and his hope of raising awareness.

FACULTY

Thomas Moody, MD
President
Urology Health Foundation
Birmingham, Alabama

PROGRAM OBJECTIVES

1. Identify two causes of an abnormal prostate-specific antigen (PSA) level.
2. Evaluate the role of patient symptoms, rectal exam, and PSA in the early diagnosis of prostate cancer.
3. Assess when to refer a patient for a prostate biopsy.
4. Be able to identify two psychological effects prostate cancer can have on the survivor and his family.
5. Identify ways collaboration can raise awareness of prostate cancer in the male population and lead to early detection.
