

You're Young.
You Have Breast Cancer.
What Now?

Ask Us.

GULF STATES YOUNG BREAST CANCER SURVIVOR NETWORK

When a young women gets a breast cancer diagnosis, she is faced with unique issues that older women with the disease don't have to confront, such as:

- Fertility and premature menopause
- Genetic testing and implications for other family members
- Body image, sexual intimacy, dating
- Dealing with children
- Economic and career implications
- Often more serious strains of the disease

That's why we're here. We're the Gulf States Young Breast Cancer Survivor Network, an online partnership of programs in three states: SurviveDAT in Louisiana, SurviveAL in Alabama and SurviveMISS in Mississippi. We have answers, ranging from the big questions of what you should do if you want to have children one day, down to who in your area is experienced in drawing back eyebrows lost to chemotherapy. Most importantly, we want you to know you are not alone.

GULF STATES YOUNG BREAST CANCER SURVIVOR NETWORK

