

STATE OF ALABAMA DEPARTMENT OF
PUBLIC HEALTH

Organ Donor (60)

According to the Alabama Organ Center, there are more than one hundred fourteen thousand people waiting for an organ transplant nationally, with a new person added to the list every ten minutes. Unfortunately, many may never get the call saying that a suitable organ donor – and a second chance at life – has been found.

If you've ever considered organ donation, now is a perfect time to become a donor. It is a generous and worthwhile decision that can be a lifesaver. One organ and tissue donation can save or enhance the lives of nearly one hundred people.

Transplantation not only benefits the individual recipient, but all of their friends, family and people they influence. In Alabama, we have more than two thousand people that are waiting for a transplant.

For more information about how you can become a donor, or to sign up on-line, visit the Alabama Organ Center's website at alabama-organ-center-dot-org.

For more information, contact: Ryan Easterling
Ryan.Easterling@adph.state.al.us / 334-206-3878