

KEEPING THE "FUN" IN FUNDRAISING

WHILE COMPLYING WITH ALABAMA SCHOOL FUNDRAISING POLICY

FUNDRAISING SHOULD SUPPORT A HEALTHY SCHOOL ENVIRONMENT

Selling less nutritious food items for fundraising contradicts nutrition messages taught in the classroom and as part of the Child Nutrition Program, which emphasizes healthy meals by requiring schools to serve more fruits, vegetables, and whole grains than ever before. Fundraisers should not give the impression that schools care more about making money than about student health. In contrast, healthful fundraising gives consistent, positive health messages.

ALABAMA SCHOOL FUNDRAISING POLICY

Every school has a responsibility to follow the new Alabama School Fundraising Policy to build a consistent environment that helps foster healthy eating behaviors during the school day. The policy focuses on reducing the amount of less-healthy food items, or items that do not meet the USDA Smart Snacks in School Standards, that students have access to throughout the school day.

While fundraisers compliant with the USDA Smart Snacks in School Standards updated July 1, 2016 are greatly encouraged, the Alabama School Fundraising Policy allows 30 "exempt fundraisers" per year, which is defined as the sale of any food item that does not meet the Smart Snacks Standards. Any food item that does not meet the USDA Smart Snacks in School Standards and is sold during the school day is counted as one exempt fundraiser, which can last for no more than one day in length.
